

SEQUEL

all through the party, her come-on flitting and flirting, redfaced nearly everyone but her husband. After one of her louder and lewder exchanges, he said to no one in particular "I wonder what my next wife will look like?"
We all wondered, too.

QUAKE FEVER

after the 7.4 Landers quake (to ease the uneasiness), they started a pool at work to see how many aftershocks occurred in the following month during office hours. Jerry in Purchasing records the day and time on a huge piece of walled butcher paper by the water cooler. We're up to 9 already and just starting the 2nd week. In case of a tie, the winners split the pot. If the BIG ONE comes down, all bets are off ....

SHORTCHANGED

I hand a $100 bill to the checker. She holds it up to the light, fiddles it, frisks it, then calls the store manager over to do the same.
After a whispered pow-wow of genuineness, she forks over my change. I count it and find it short. "Miss," I say "I don't believe this is right." She refigures the change and reaches into the till for the missing $20. All this time she is glaring at me in great disgust — not because she made a mistake but that I would dare discover it.
